

POSTGRADUATES STUDIES DEPARTMENT OF PATHOLOGY, FACULTY OF MEDICINE, UNIVERSITY KEBANGSAAN MALAYSIA

Pathology is the branch of medical science that deals with the study and diagnosis of diseases. It involves the examination of organs, tissues, bodily fluids, and cells to determine the nature, cause, and effects of diseases. It is a fundamental component of modern medicine and contributes significantly to patient care, research, and public health. It also helps identify diseases at an early stage, provides prognostic information, guides treatment decisions, and contributes to the understanding of disease processes.
